OLD BUT VERY GOOD.

"As three girls in the garden were viewing the plants, Conducted respectively by their gallants.

Says William to Nancy, 'Here is one will reveal A secret which many fine beauties conceal A secret which many fine beauties conceal
And when modest virtue has flown from the stand
It will shrink at the touch it receives from the hand.'
The ladies all gazed as if rather dismayed,
But Nancy at length said, 'Fooh! I'm not afraid.'
Her fair hand advanced, the experiment tried,
When lo! in an instant the plant drooped and die
The poor girl first redden'd then whiten'd as snow,
Said softly, 'Lord help me, how did the plant know!''
The ladies declared this was too bad, and one of them retorted with the best epigram of the evening : "As Harry one day was abusing the sex

As things that in courtship but studied to vex,
And in marrige but sought to inthrall;
'Never mind him,' says Kate, 'tis a family whim;

His farther agreed so exactly with him, That he never would marry at all!" From the New York Evening Post. Epigram. As my wife and I at the window one day, Stood watching a man with a monkey, A cart came by, with a "broth of a boy,"
Who was driving a stout little denkey.

To my wife I then spoke, by way of a joke, "There's a relation of yours in that carriage," To which she replied, as the donkey she spied, "Ah, yes, a relation---by marriage!"

Duck Hunt Extraordinary. MR. EDITOR: -In a country filling up as Texas s, and has been for some years past, it is but natural that we find a large number of persons who well merit the title of "green 'uns." Of this class was John McL-e, a native of old Virginia, who became a citizen of Texas soon after it was admitted into the Union. Now, friend John was passionately fond of hunting, and scarcely did his foot press Texan soil before he was running in all directions in search of game, but unfortunately he wound up his first exploit by slayin; three tame turkeys, the property of an old lady living in A. This threw such a RANAWAY from the subscriber, sometime in October last, his negro man known as "JACK SALT-ER." Said negro is about 23 years old—about six feet high, and spare built. He formerly belonged to Mr. James Bryant of Bladen county, and is supposed to be lurking in the neighborhood of his plantation, or that of Isaac Wright, Esq., in the same county, as he has a wife in that neighborhood. The above reward will be given for the delivery of the said negro to M. Cronly, Esq., in Wilmington, or to the subscriber, E. A. HAWES.

From the New York Express Correspondent The Old Line Whig Senators. The present state of parties in the Senate seems t have puzzled the majority not a little. Last week they invited some of "the unspotted Whigs," as selection of Democrats and Whigs for the committees, and upon the basis of the old mode of organization. The invitation was not accepted, as stated in the Tribune correspondence and elsewhere. The truth of the case in detail is as follows: Six of the Old Line Whigs met, on the invitation of Mr. Jones of Tennessee, at Mr. J.'s house. The Americans were excluded from the invitation, and the socalled "Republicans" were also excluded. The persons in attendance were Messrs. Fish of N. Pearce and Pratt of Md., Geyer of Mo., Jones of Tenn., and Benjamin of La. The Whigs were then and there asked to meet the Democrats in caucus to make the committees of the bodies of which they were members, and to participate in the usual choice of the officers of the body. So far from accepting this invitation, which was entirely respectful in itself, they declined it, stating broke up from the ground, near the wall, tore up the that the power was with the responsible majority, and they must exercise it as in their judgment they thought best. American Diplomacy in Greece. If Russia have friends in various quarters of the lobe, it is certain that she has enemies in as many. To do the advisers of the Czar justice, they neglect no opportunity that diplomacy or cunning allows to establish amicable relations in all parts of the world. From Athens to New York, from Amoy to Paraguay, from the fiords of Norway to the pampas of South America, Russian agency is busily at work-with bribes, where bribes are acceptable, and with threats, where bribery is of no avail-to construct and complete her network of political influence. Long ago the instinct of the English people pointed to Sweden and Norway as the countries where it was essential to meet and combat the arts of the Czar; and we now find that the governments of France and Great Britain, lagging behind the people, have at the eleventh hour judged it inexpedient to try whether it be possible to enlist the Scandinavian nations in the great European league against Russia We shall have occasion hereafter to advert to the mission of General Canrobert to the Court of Stockholm. In the meantime, wishing all success to a mission which has been but too long delayed, we wish to direct attention to the affairs of Greece -a country where Russian influence is predominant-and as regards which a new competitor, boding mischief, has suddenly started up. The government of the United States, strange as it may seem, is desirous to obtain a foot in ancient Hellas, by the purchase of one or more of the mulititudinous islands of the Morea. What, then, is the real condition of Greece? and what are the duties of Great Britain and France towards a state of which they were, in an unhappy hour, and in conjunction with Russia, the founders and protectors? outset of this inquiry we emphatically disclaim any intention of indulging in vituperative language against Hellenic royalty. But facts must be recorded, nevertheless, with that unmistakable language which is the prerogative of truth.

Since the year 1843, when the constitution was wrung from the unwilling hands of King Otho by General Kalergi, his Majesty has labored hard to convince those through whose instrumentality the new system of government was introduced, that the change did not in the least benefit the country; but that, on the contrary, it created new difficulties for the Executive, by its alleged inappropriateness to such an infant state as Greece. It is a well-known tact that the prominent political weakness of his Majesty consists in a steadfast desire to be despotic. The knowlege of this fact served as a medium through which the band of unscrupulous courtiers who surrounded him worked out their own individual views, at the sacrifice of the country's welfare; and, unfortunately, the Prime Minister in office at occupation of Greece by the English and French only cherished the irritation of the king, and completely baffled the Hellenic Court when engaged in seconding "John," said I, "you see that tree at the bend of the views of Russia by its insane aggressive move-"Very well," he answered, "I'll do it exactly right; suffered from the best friends of Greece? If he has put what are you going to do in the meantime?— ever thus reflected, his dogged obstinacy must at once be characterized as criminal, inasmuch as a whole nation suffers for his folly. England and France, however, are too much interested in the poitical well-being of Greece to allow shch a state of things to continue. We feel persuaded that they have definitively resolved having the country properly governed. The temporizing system pursued by the King, and his dependence on contingencies, will prove to be unavailing, and may eventually make those two Powers more difficult to deal with, when the day of reckoning arrives. The King has still time for reflection, and it is to be hoped that he will see the danger of the course he is following. He is positive of one thing-that, considering the actual circumstances of Europe, and his openly expressed sympathy with Russia, the patience and fortearance of England and France are likely to be soon exhausted. His desire to be a despotic monarch he cannot be allowed to gratify; it would be as well, therefore, for his own sake, if he were to inaugurate a new and wiser policy, an I govern his adopted country as becomes the ruler of an intelligent nation.

When the campaign in Asia was ordered by the Emperor Nicholas, General Mouravieff seeing this contingent of 18,000 men figure in the army list, took it also into his head to go and rscertain the state of these troops. He took the precaution to travel without a retinue, taking only a single aid de-camp, and meeting with the same reception as his predecessor, announced his intention of waiting until the troops could be collected from the mountain fortresses. He did not wait in idleness, however, but from active personal inspection, came to the conclusion that the forts had never been built, and that the men existed only on paper. Consequently, for the twenty-five or thirty years that war had been waged in the Caucasus, the Russian government had been paying enormous sums for the maintenance of an imaginary division for the construction of chimerical forts, true castles in the air.

REMARKABLE ELECTRIC EXPLOSION .- One of the most remarkable natural explosions of electricity we have ever known took place a few weeks since at the residence of David Thomas, of Union Springs, Cayuga county, N. Y. It is thus related: "There appears to have been a negative cloud passing over head at the time. For Commissioners of Town is progressing, so far, quietly and without fuss or trouble; but, of course, with considerable excitement. The count to-night will tell the result. If the citizens anti-Know Nothing ticket be not successful, it will be the fault of the citizens themselves. Of the voters of town, a majority are of that way of thinking, or we are most enormously mistaken. It is too late now to electioneer. Work is the only thing. Voting the only course that can tell with effect. Do that peaceably and quietly, but do it, and then there will be nothing with which to reproach yourselves. If your ticket—the citizens' ticket—the constitutional ticket-be successful, you will have the pleasing reflection of having contributed to that result. If the contrary, you will know that you have done your duty. In success or in defeat, observe the law, respect the law, submit to the law.

If any man knows of a friend or neighbor that has not voted, see him; see that he does vote, and that he votes right. To men with true principles and honest determination, there is, there ought to be, no such word as fail. Truth, openness and honesty of purpose must, sooner or later, bear the sway.

If a voter is sick and unable to attend without being carried, carry him. Let him not lose his vote. nor the cause of civil and religious liberty the advantages of it. Do your duty. Do your whole duty. Put your ticket clean through. That's the way .-That's the word. Keep to work like men until the sun goes down.

The Scene in the House. The dull round of voting which has gone on day as emanating from the American party; it was after day in the House of Representatives for the last eight days had not come to an end at the adournment yesterday. There was the same solid Northern abolition vote fronting the Southern repretheir self-appropriated title of the American party, sentatives like a fortress threatening their dearest rights-the same stubborn divisions among the majority-and the same unyielding and dignified bearing of the democratic numbers. The House of Representatives has in fact become a great know nothing and abolition caucus room; and the public time is squandered in vigorous but vain efforts to bring the dominant power together on a single candidate .-Left to themselves, the opposing advocates of respective aspirants might come into conflict; but the restraining presence of the democrats keep them in check, and admonishes them to peace. For all practical purposes, the House might as well adjourn till the majority agreed upon a Speaker. The democrats have done their part. They had a plain duty to perform, and they performed it. They asserted their faith in the truth, and nominated their candidate; and now they calmly await the issue. If others cannot follow this noble lead, it is not the fault of the democrats. A democrat like Col. Richardson, covered with the armor of a just cause, may well sry to his Northern foes, "Come and take me, if you can ;" but when they do take him, it must be as a captain, and not as a captive.

tened Laura, that's all." Guess I will try you some time," and Podkins applied a match to his cigar and walked out. Proceeding to a confectioner's he purchased a mammoth sugar heart and two smaller ones. These he took to his shop, and cut a piece of shingle the exact size of the larger heart, and placed the wooden counterfeit in a paper with the smaller ones, that the packages might look as near alike as possible. Nearly tea time Podkins entered the sitting room where Laura and her friend Mary were busy plying their needles. Seating himself near by, he drew from his coat pocket two small bundles, and presenting one to each of the girls, remarked that he had long contemplated making them some presents, but hoped that as an especial favor to himself that they would not toll each other what the paper contained. Laura and Mary promised obedience, at the same time casting uneasy glances at the mysterious girls. "Remember, the first who breaks her promise will forfeit her claim to the title of secret-keeper, and mend my coat by way of a penalty," added Podkins, rising to exhibit more fully a most sorrowful looking garment, so "tattered and torn," that a tailor would have been puzzled to decide what was its original

The girls considered themselves safe concerning the coat, and chided the wearer for being so skeptical in regard to their ability to keeping a secret. Curiosity was only half satisfied, however, after ascertaining that Podkins' generosity bestowed a heart. It was not long ere the donor overheard Mary and Laura in the kitchen, teasing one another to reveal by some sign at least, the forbidden fruit .-But each stood her ground wonderfully, and Podkins feared his coat would remain tattered. The girl's sleeping apartment was contiguous to the one occupied by Podkins and his friend Barlow. As only a

Congress -- The Growth of the Anti-Slavery Party, It is a strange, but no less well established fact, that when danger is most imminent, men are usually most cool. They then rally all their courage, all their caution, and all their discretion to meet and disarm it. Nothing furnishes a stronger illustration of s than the contest for Speakership which is now going on in the House of Representatives The time was, nor has it been more than a few short years ago, when the delivery of an Abolition speech in ei-ther House of Congress excited the just indignation of all sound constitutional men, whether from the South or the North. It almost caused the very hair of the slaveholders in Congress to stand on end. The rumor of such a speech was spread with electric speed through the South, and shocked and enraged all whose ears it reached. In those times it required a bold or a shameless man to assail the tenure by which the slave-holder holds his property. It was deemed so henious an offence as to call not only for unsparing denunciation, but for personal, corporal chastisement. Yet that was but the first harmless tipple of the waters. In the lapse of a few short years, the Abolitionists have grown bolder and bolder They have increased in number and increased in zeal They have an organization extending throughout the so-called free States, and they maintain a discipline that regular troops might envy. The public mind has become so accustomed to hearing their speeches and reading their appeals and their newspapers that they listen to the first, and read the last, without experiencing a shock or a shudder. This progress and ncrease of the anti-slavery power has gone steadily on until it aspires now to control the popular branch of the Federal Government. That party has put forward its candidates for all the offices to be elected by the House of Representatives, and laughs to scorn the idea of defeat. Yet throughout the protracted contest there have been no disturbances-no criminations-no excitements. Abolition nomi nations are and confidence as a sturdy plantation negro would sit down to his breakfast. The very men who were thrown into a rage, a few years ago, by the express. ion of an abstract Abolition sentiment, are now as cool as a cucumber when an actual struggle for ascendancy is going on in the House of Representa-

> DEATH FROM DRINKING CAMPHINE.—The Balti more Sun of yesterday relates the following case of a death ensuing from drinking camphine:

On Friday afternoon last, a man under the influence of liquor was observed in the vicinity of Washington street and Canton avenue -he applied for some liquor in a neighboring shop, but was refused. In a short time a camphine wagon drove up, and while the driver was in a house supplying a customer he went to the wagon and seizing a measure drew a quantity of liquid and swallowed it. In a short time he became overpowered with its effects, and about four o'clock was taken by an officer to the Eastern Station-house, and died about five o'clock on Sunday

We believe we cannot do our readers a more important service, than by again calling their attention to that most remarkable preparation, discovered by Dr. Seth S. Hance, of Baltimore, Md., which possesses the power of alleviating and curing that horrid visitation of man—Epilepsy, or Falling Fits. In recommending this preparation to our readers, we do so with a conviction that we are not degrading our columns to puff a common patent medicine, but are placing before them a discovery, which, if fully known, would probably do more to alleviate human suffering, than any invention of modern times. Dr. Hance, in asking us to notice his preparation favorably in our editorial department, has sent us for perusal a number of letters from persons who have used his Pills, and have been cured thereby. All of them speak in the most grateful and culogistic terms. SPIRITS TURPENTINE .- The market since our last has ruled steady at 38 cents & gallon. There is rather more fi.mness in the market, and 38 cents has been offered and refused, sellers generally holding at higher figures. The week's sales foot up 1,727 bbls. viz:
Thursday..... 409 bbls. at 38 cents $\mathcal{y}$ gallon.

Tuesday 100 " " 38 " " No sales this morning up to closing our report.

Rosin—Since our last review there has been very little done in this article, and the price has declined 10 cents, owing principally to the increased rates of freight. The sales for the week reach only 2,300 bbls., viz: Saturday 1,000 bbls. at $1 05 for large size bbls. Tuesday.....1,.00 " 1 05 " " " " Nothing done to-day. In Nos. 1 and 2 we hear of no sales more Market, Dec. 14th:—"When we left the Coffee narket last week it was firm, prices tending upwards. Since then there has been a steady inquiry, and full rates demanded.—

Transactions have been to a fair extent. A good deal bought to go West and elsewhere out of the market. The week's transactions foot up in all about 7,000 bags Rio at 10 cents for very common, rejected 11@ 11½, fair 11½ @ 11½, and good to prime 124@ 12½ cents. The bulk of the sales was of fair for very common, rejected 11 @ 114, fair 112 @ 114, and good to prime 124 @ 124 cents. The bulk of the sales was of fair to good qualities. The market closes firm with a good demand. But little Laguayra and Java on hand. We quote the former at 114 @ 12, and the latter 144 @ 154 cents.—Stock of Rio about 32,000 bags. Imports of the week 2,760 bags from Rio. The market to-day is very firm. This was on Thursday. On Friday, somebody posted up in the matter exposed the secret. The news fell upon the young lady's parents in a manner that shows old folks are not to be trifled with. They look upon the marriage readily at forty cents per pound. as an outrage, and insist that the bride "shall not live with the clerk aforesaid." The young lady says she won't do anything else. The old folks reply to this by saying that if she does they will cut her off with a shilling. The young lady says she "can't help it." She has a lawful husband and she intends to cling to him "shillings or no shillings." We fear the old folks will have to give in. In such matters they usually do .- Albany Knickerbocker.
